THREE PROMINENT CHOREOGRAPHERS PRESENT "VIDEO DANCE" AT GW NOV. 18-20

Concert with Guest Artists Li Chiao-Ping and Kay Izlar, and Maida Withers, Artistic Director of Dance Construction Company

EVENT: Fall "VIDEO DANCE" Concert presents three works by prominent choreographers LI CHIAO-PING, KAY IZLAR and MAIDA WITHERS, performed by The George Washington University Dance Company.

WHEN: Thursday - Saturday, Nov. 18 - 20 at 8 p.m.

WHERE: The George Washington University
Dorothy Betts Marvin Theatre
800 21st Street, NW, Washington, D.C.

COST: $8 General
$5 Students/Senior citizens
For ticket information call (202) 994-6178

Background:

Choreographers Li Chiao-Ping and Douglas Rosenberg, performance video artists, present an excerpt from the collaborative work, "Le Train Du Memoir: Exotic Activities and Rudimentary Behavior," which refers to the recreation of the journey from Paris to Auschwitz by survivors and their families of the Nazi concentration camps.

As a solo artist, Li has toured throughout the country and her company, LI CHIAO-PING DANCE was recently presented by the Institute for the Arts at Duke University. She currently performs with Dzigo Vertov Performance Group in San Francisco. Her artistic partnership with Douglas Rosenberg has included many collaborations including a video dance piece entitled "Yellow River (Hwang Ho)," which has screened internationally as well as nationally. Li is currently on the dance faculty at the University of Wisconsin at Madison.

The performance video work of Douglas Rosenberg has been broadcast on PBS TV and shown both in the U.S. and internationally. Well known for his work with dance and video, his collaborations include work with choreographers June Watanabe and Li Chiao-Ping. He is the founder and artistic director of Dzigo Vertov Performance Group, an interdisciplinary, inter-media group begun to create new and challenging works for the theater. For the last six years he has been the director of the Video Archive Program at the American Dance Festival as well as a member of the faculty.

He was recently awarded a Painted Bride Art Center New Forms Grant to create a new work in collaboration with Li Chiao-Ping. His other grants include a National Endowment for the Arts Dance/Film/Video Grant with choreographer June Watanabe, a North Carolina Arts Council Special Projects Grant and a Sony/ American Film Institute Award at the National Video Festival.

A new work by Kay Izlar during her residency on the campus of GW will include video shot in Amsterdam where she resides. An artist/teacher at the New School in Amsterdam, Izlar is known throughout Europe for her experimental performances with highly charged physical motion, mixed media and text.

Maida Withers' new driving and dramatic work for sixteen dancers explores the dynamics of fascism in its subtle and new forms. Her work involves the music of Kodo drummers and includes video of Noh masks and projection of live performance on stage.

GW PROGRAM BOARD TO HOST STUDENT DEBATE ON NAFTA OCTOBER 14

Student Political Groups to Debate Whether Congress Should Ratify the Trade Pact

WHAT: Two teams of GW students will lock horns over the merits of the North American Free Trade Agreement in a debate over the resolution, "Resolved: The United States should immediately ratify the NAFTA treaty."

WHEN: Thursday, October 14, 1993
8 p.m. to 10 p.m.

WHERE: The George Washington University
Funger Hall, Room 108
2201 G Street, NW
Washington, DC
(Foggy Bottom/GW Metro, Blue and Orange lines)

Background:

Six student organizations will participate in the debate. The College Democrats, the College Republicans and the Objectivist Club will argue for ratification of the NAFTA treaty. They will square off against the Progressive Student Union, Students for Environmental Action and the Young Americans for Freedom, who will take the opposite side of the debate.

The George Washington University Program Board is a student-run, non-partisan campus organization whose goal is to provide intellectual discussion and entertainment for the GW community.

Located four blocks from the White House, The George Washington University was created by an Act of Congress in 1821. Today, GW is the largest institution of higher education in the nation's capital. The University offers comprehensive programs of undergraduate and graduate liberal arts study as well as degree programs in medicine, law, engineering, education, business/public administration and international affairs. Each year GW enrolls a diverse population of 19,000 undergraduate, graduate and professional students from all 50 states, the District of Columbia and 120 countries.

HAMPTON UNIVERSITY STUDENTS HOSTED BY GW'S ELLIOTT SCHOOL OF INTERNATIONAL AFFAIRS FOR "WEEK IN WASHINGTON" NOV. 1 - 5

Informal Exchange Program Brings Tidewater Group to D.C. for a View of Foreign Policy Making Process

Six Hampton University students have descended upon the nation's capital for a week-long immersion in the study of international affairs. The students, hosted by The George Washington University Elliott School of International Affairs, are participating in an informal institutional pairing program which encourages an exchange of students, faculties and staff between the two institutions.

The effort was instituted to promote interest among minority students in foreign service careers, to complement Hampton University's offerings in the area of international studies and to enhance the Elliott School's efforts to network with minorities. The GW collaboration with Hampton University will promote frequent interaction for curriculum development, possible research projects and recruitment. This new relationship is further advanced by the proximity of GW's Hampton Roads Center (a satellite location for graduate and professional development studies) with its facilities, staff and telecommunications infrastructure.

The Hampton students' "Week in Washington" will consist of a State Department policy briefing, a lecture on NAFTA at the Canadian Embassy, a guided tour of the White House as well as visits to Transafrica, Amnesty International, Africare, the Pentagon, the Embassy of Antigua and Barbuda and various cultural outings. The schedule of activities culminates with a roundtable discussion on future directions for the exchange program on Friday, November 5, 10:00 - 11:00 a.m., at the Elliott School of International Affairs (Stuart Hall 108), followed by an address by GW President Stephen Joel Trachtenberg at 11:00 a.m.

Earlier this fall, three GW students traveled to Hampton for a Career Day to discuss opportunities in international affairs. Program plans for spring 1994 include Hampton students participating in crisis simulation exercises at GW, Hampton faculty giving presentations to GW's undergraduate Africa courses and a GW faculty member and a policy practitioner attending Hampton's spring forum.

Background:

The purpose of this event is to generate congressional and public support for a nonpartisan, multi-faceted approach to strengthening families. Topics to be discussed include: creating pro-rated fringe benefits for parents working part-time; assuring child support for working parents; mitigating the marriage tax penalty; involving parents in schools; developing community supports for families; and preparing for and strengthening marriages. This important event will bring together policymakers, family advocates and researchers, intellectuals and community leaders to explore innovative ideas for helping American families meet the present-day challenges in their lives. This event is sponsored by the American Association for Marriage and Family Therapy, American Association of Homes for the Aging, American Public Welfare Association, Commonwealth Foundation, Family Service America, National Black Child Development Institute, National Civic League, National Council on Family Relations and Points of Light Foundation.

The Communitarian Network is a national, nonprofit membership organization dedicated to shoring up the moral, social and political environment. The network mobilizes coalitions to develop innovative solutions to public problems. The Communitarian perspective is articulated in the quarterly journal of the Communitarian movement, The Responsive Community: Rights and Responsibilities, the Communitarian Position Paper Series, and in a newsletter, The Communitarian Reporter.

The network was founded in 1991 by Amitai Etzioni to implement the vision of The Responsible Communitarian Platform, which was drafted by a group of ethicists and social thinkers. The Platform has been endorsed by over 90 leading Americans, from local activists to national political figures. The Network has published several position papers, held two national conferences and collaborates with similar organizations in policy development and education and awareness programs.

"GW BASKETBALL: PAST, PRESENT AND FUTURE"
NOVEMBER 4 - DECEMBER 2

EVENT: As a promising new basketball season approaches, The George Washington University Colonnade Gallery is pleased to host "GW Basketball: Past, Present and Future."

The exhibit features photographs, news items, posters and historic memorabilia, as well as GW letters, uniforms and equipment, documenting the history of the men's and women's basketball teams at GW. Emphasis is on the program's five NCAA teams: men in 1993, 1961 and 1954; women in 1992 and 1991. The exhibit also highlights the 1993-94 teams, both of which are expected to have outstanding seasons. The early years of the program and its development are also featured. Many of the artifacts on display will be on loan from the University Archives.

Coinciding with the exhibit, members of the GW community will be invited to attend open practice sessions of GW's winning basketball teams! (TBA)

The exhibit is co-sponsored by the Department of Athletics and Recreation; the University Archives, Special Collections Department, Gelman Library; and the Marvin Center Governing Board.

GW FORENSIC INVESTIGATORS OF LIZZIE BORDEN CASE AND MERIWETHER LEWIS DEATH
TO PRESENT RESULTS TO GEOLOGICAL SOCIETY OF AMERICA

October 25th Presentation in Boston to Feature Heretofore Unseen Photographs and Illustrations

Boston, MA -- In a joint presentation to the Geological Society of America (GSA) Professors James Starrs and George Stephens of The George Washington University will present on October 25 findings from ground penetrating radar (GPR) investigations of the graves of Andrew and Abby Borden -- alleged victims of Lizzie Borden -- and Meriwether Lewis of Lewis and Clark fame.

Through the use of GPR, Starrs, professor of law and forensic sciences at GW, was able to locate with near certainty the skulls of Abby and Andrew Borden. The skulls, which had been held as evidence during Lizzie's trial, had been missing since her acquittal in 1893. "I am as sure as science will allow," said Starrs, "That the skulls are buried in the Oak Grove Cemetery in Falls River about three feet above the rest of the remains of the Bordens."

GPR has been commonly used for the last decade primarily for locating underground storage tanks, buried waste storage drums, subsurface concrete structures and groundwater tables. "Its uses for forensic investigators are invaluable as it offers a non-invasive means of determining the location of human remains and artifacts," says Starrs.

Starrs is currently petitioning the Falls River Historical Society for permission to examine certain artifacts from the crime. Among them are hair samples from Andrew and Abby Borden and traces of milk which may help determine whether or not the Bordens were being poisoned prior to their deaths. Other items include bloodstained bedclothes from Abby Borden's room and a sample taken from the alleged murder weapon which may or may not be human hair. "We could tell right away under a microscope whether the hair is human or not," says Starrs.

Stephens, chairman of the Department of Geology, is a team member on the Meriwether Lewis investigation. Lewis died mysteriously on October 10, 1809, at Grinder Stand, a frontier outpost about 70 miles from Nashville, of gunshot wounds to the head and chest. The cause of death was described as suicide, but Starrs finds the evidence inconclusive. Through the use of GPR, the team was able to determine the likelihood of the presence of a void beneath Lewis' monument. Starrs is presently awaiting permission from the National Park Service to open an exploratory trench at Lewis' grave site to obtain further data.

The presentation, entitled "Lizzy Borden Took an Ax (?) -- and Other Geophysical Anomalies: The Use of Ground Penetrating Radar in Historical Forensics Science," will be presented at the 1993 GSA annual meeting in Boston, held at the Copley Marriott. Starrs and Stephens will be presenting from 1-4 p.m.

Members of the media interested in contacting Professor Starrs may reach him at (703)978-8509 until Saturday at 4:00 p.m and at the Copley Marriott in Boston, (617) 236-5800, thereafter.

PIANIST MELISSA LESBINES RETURNS TO GW'S LISNER AT NOON SERIES

Lesbines to Present Solo Program of Ravel, Schumann and Chopin
at Free Public Concert November 17

EVENT: Free lunchtime concert at The George Washington University's Lisner Auditorium. Pianist MELISSA LESBINES performs works by Ravel, Schumann and Chopin.

WHEN: Wednesday, November 17, 1993 from 12:15 to 12:50 p.m.

WHERE: The George Washington University
Lisner Auditorium
21st and H Streets NW
Washington, D.C.

COST: Free and open to the public

Background:

MELISSA LESBINES has been hailed by audiences and critics for her very personal style of lyricism and refined musicianship. The Milwaukee Sentinel says, "[Lesbines] performed with sensitivity, grace and rhythmic assurance." Conductor Mitch Miller praises her as a "fine musician with a temperament whose excellent playing communicates to the listeners in a most evocative manner."

Since her professional debut with the Milwaukee Symphony Orchestra in 1987, Lesbines has performed with the Buffalo Philharmonic, and will appear next season as soloist with the Milwaukee Chamber Orchestra and the Milwaukee Youth Symphony Orchestra. She has performed extensively as soloist and chamber musician with such groups as the Stamford Chamber Orchestra, Cincinnati Percussion Ensemble and Essential Music.

Lesbines has also performed at the American Landmark Festivals, Roosevelt University in Chicago, the Piano Gallery (WI), Vogel Hall (WI), Wisconsin Conservatory of Music, Yamaha Communications Center in New York City, Cami Hall in New York City, and has been heard on Wisconsin Public Radio and WBFO-FM Radio Opus: Classics Live.

As keyboardist with the Laura Dean Dancers and Musicians, Lesbines performed at Festival de Otono in Madrid, the Atlanta Arts Festival (GA), Benedicta Arts Center (MN), Virginia Museum Theater, Northeastern University (MA), Fairfield University (CT) and Albany Empire State Performing Arts Center (NY).

A native of Milwaukee, Lesbines is married to pianist John Cheek and presently lives in New York City. She began her studies at the Milwaukee Conservatory of Music with the late Adelaide Banasynski. After studies at the University of Wisconsin-Madison, Lesbines earned both a bachelor's and master's degree from the Eastman School of Music. She has studied with Peter Serkin, Rebecca Penneys and Andre Laplante. Lesbines opened the fall Lisner at Noon series playing with violinist Claudia Chudacoff.

LISNER AT NOON concerts are held in Lisner Auditorium, at the corner of 21st and H Streets on The George Washington University campus (Foggy Bottom-GW Metro stop on the Blue and Orange Lines). All performances are free and open to the public.

For further information about the Lisner at Noon series, contact Jenn Huntzinger at (202) 994-5524.

GW'S LISNER AUDITORIUM PRESENTS INTERNATIONAL COMEDY TROUPE, THE NEW VIC THEATRE OF LONDON'S PRODUCTION OF
"THE CANTERBURY TALES"

EVENT: The George Washington University Lisner Auditorium presents the New Vic Theatre Company of London's production of "THE CANTERBURY TALES."

Heralded as "the best theatrical comedy group in the world today" by the Philadelphia Inquirer, the New Vic revives Chaucer's "CANTERBURY TALES" in a dazzling performance. This updated version of Chaucer's classic, is modified by Phil Woods and Michael Bogdanov in a spirited, Monty Python style.

WHEN: Saturday, November 20
8:00 p.m.

WHERE: The George Washington University
Lisner Auditorium
21st and H Streets NW, Washington, D.C.
(Two blocks from Foggy Bottom/GW Metro)

COST: Tickets are $12 - $18.
Tickets are on sale at all TICKETMASTER outlets, PhoneCharge (202)432-SEAT and the GW Marvin Center Newstand. Half-price tickets for groups are available through Jeremy Caplan, (202) 994-5524. For general ticket information, call Lisner at 994-6800.

"The Canterbury Tales" is co-sponsored by Lisner Auditorium, GW's Program Board and Office of Campus Life

- MORE -

Background:

"THE CANTERBURY TALES"

"Unlike Chaucer's tales, a group of diverse social types do not assemble at the Tabard Inn to make the Spring pilgrimage to the shrine of St. Thomas Becket, who was murdered in Coventry Cathedral in 1170 and subsequently canonized," says Hartford Courant reviewer, Tony Angarano. "Instead, a group of contemporary amateurs have entered the 600th Annual Geoffrey Chaucer Memorial Storytelling Competition, held on the lawn of the local vicar, the Very Reverend Christopher Pardoner, drolly played by Chris Barnes.

"As members of the audience choose which of the Tales will be performed, the individual characters use Chaucer's lines -- translated from Middle English -- to introduce each sequence. The New Vic has selected six familiar Tales told by the Pardoner, the Franklyn, the Reeve, the Nun's Priest, the Wife of Bath and the Miller..."

The six tales enacted by a cast of nine use real props, impromptu props and voluntary and involuntary audience participation. The company has received rave reviews in England, Ireland, Canada and throughout the U.S. The New Vic has been lauded for their robust style which combines the antics of the Marx Brothers with the wit of Monty Python and somehow, remarkably, still remains true to the original Chaucer text.

Development's International Institute for Tourism Studies at The George Washington University in September 1993 to develop new curricula in the field of sport and special event management and marketing. The Forum will offer professional services such as symposia, research, educational products and reference/referral networks. Over the next year, the organization hopes to solicit financial contributions to support scholarships for outstanding students, minorities and women as well as an endowed chair for distinguished faculty.

Ongoing activities of the Forum include the organization of a sport and special event collection of audio-visual materials, periodicals and other publications which will constitute an information resource and retrieval system for use by students, practitioners and scholars. The institute is also initiating the first comprehensive, industry-wide economic impact study in conjunction with the International Special Events Society.

"This new forum will be instrumental in moving professional athletes, student athletes, minorities and women out of the area of exploitation and into management-level employment," says Peter Smith, dean of the GW School of Education and Human Development. "Here we have a good example of the University reorganizing institutional resources to fit emerging needs."

The George Washington University offers an undergraduate degree program in exercise science with a sport management emphasis, and a masters degree in sport studies with a concentration in sport and special event marketing and management. In addition, students may earn a masters degree in tourism administration, with emphasis on special events. Individuals interested in professional development rather than an academic degree program may enroll in courses through the continuing education program. Application to the program may be made through the School of Education and Human Development, 202/994-6161.

WHERE: Melvin Gelman Library
The George Washington University
2130 H Street, NW, first floor lobby
Washington, D.C.
(Foggy Bottom Metro, Blue and Orange lines)

Background:

As part of the celebration, the library will honor Mrs. Melvin Gelman for her generous support of the library. Also, the Friends of the University Libraries will present Gelman Library with a commemorative gift. In addition, Coaches Mike Jarvis and Joe McKeown, of the GW Colonials men's and women's basketball teams, respectively, will be joined by their players in a festive cake-cutting ceremony.

The Gelman Library is The George Washington University's main research library, with more than 1.5 million books and periodicals as well as a wide variety of electronic reference tools. The library moved into its present facility in 1973 after outgrowing its former home in Lisner Hall. It was named for Melvin Gelman in 1981.

Today, the Gelman Library continues to serve as an important resource for students and researchers. The library's modern facilities include dozens of computer terminals, which provide access to an automated card catalog and a wide variety of databases. An exhibit chronicling the history of the library continues daily through October 29 in Special Collections, Room 207 of the library.

GW'S PETER REDDAWAY AWARDED U.S. INSTITUTE OF PEACE FELLOWSHIP

Peter Reddaway, professor of political science and international affairs at The George Washington University, has been selected as one of two distinguished fellows at the United States Institute of Peace in Washington, D.C. Professor Reddaway will spend one year at the Institute, studying the political right in Russia and its influence on Russian foreign policies.

Fellowships are awarded through the Jennings Randolph Program for International Peace, named after the former U.S. senator from West Virginia who was a longtime advocate of a national peace institution. Fellows, who include prominent scholars, journalists and policymakers from the United States and other nations, are chosen through an international competition. Institute projects may be conducted for periods up to one year.

Formerly director of the Kennan Institute for Advanced Russian Studies at the Woodrow Wilson International Center for Scholars in Washington, D.C., Peter Reddaway joined The George Washington University in 1988. He is an internationally known expert on contemporary Russian politics, author and editor. From 1965 to 1985, he was a lecturer in political science at the London School of Economics and Political Science. Reddaway holds B.A. and M.A. degrees from Cambridge University and pursued graduate work at Harvard, Moscow State and London universities. He is a faculty member of the Elliott School of International Affairs, the political science department and the Institute for European, Russian and Eurasian Studies at GW.

The United States Institute of Peace is an independent federal institution created and funded by Congress to promote international peace. Established in 1984, the Institute works to achieve a more peaceful world through a variety of activities, including grantmaking, research and studies projects, publications, library services and numerous public education and outreach activities.
